

News Paper Clippings from May 25 – 30, 2007

State to enlist holiday boaters for fight with quagga mussels ...

May 25, 2007 / The Press Enterprise

By JENNIFER BOWLES

... lakes and the Colorado River this Memorial Day weekend, making sure visitors are drying off their boats to prevent the spread of a tiny but invasive mussel. ...

Agencies, Inland counties brainstorm about water supply

May 25, 2007 / The Press Enterprise

By MICHAEL MELLO

Agencies, Inland counties brainstorm about water supply...

Elsinore Valley water board approves rate hikes

May 25, 2007 / The Californian

By JOSE CARVAJAL

Elsinore Valley Municipal Water District board members reluctantly approved the highest water- and sewer-service rate increases in the agency's history Thursday, saying they were forced to do so because of increasing electricity, i...

Preserving the imperiled California Delta

May 26, 2007 / LA Times

By BILL STALL

...northerners feared a Southern California water grab. So the delta struggled...but there's not enough water left in California for "win-win" solutions...environment. And finally, California needs a tough water czar ? a real enforcer with...

Expensive Salton Sea plan unveiled

May 26, 2007 / The Press Enterprise

By JENNIFER BOWLES and JIM MILLER

Expensive Salton Sea plan unveiled. ... Dale Hoffman-Floerke, the state's Salton Sea chief, said controlling air pollution is a top priority. Who's in Charge? ...

Judge rules against water system

May 26, 2007 / LA Times

By Bettina Boxall

...that management of California's water system is illegally imperiling fish, making...that the state will have to pump less water from the Sacramento-San Joaquin River...multiple legal fronts, arguing that water shipments are helping drive the once...system and find other ways of meeting water needs than 'Let's pump the delta dry...were found in the smelt's spawning waters this year. "This is the first time...

$8.9-billion Salton Sea plan proposed

May 26, 2007 / LA Times

By David Kelly

...billion, 75-year plan to save the Salton Sea was handed to state lawmakers Friday...in the making, would reduce the Salton Sea to about a fifth of its current size...miles wide and 35 miles long, the Salton Sea is the biggest lake in California... / Times Staff Writer

Agencies, Inland counties brainstorm about water supply

May 29, 2007 – The Press Enterprise / Hemet News

By Michael Mello

... To address that, more than 250 representatives of those agencies met in Chino on Thursday to pool ideas, an effort they christened "One Water, One Watershed." ...