Homeless ex-Marine, his family get new home

Marine veteran Darin Snyder shares a moment in his new Victoria home Thursday with granddaughter Peyton as daughter Ali and Katie look on.

The Snyder family’s new home has a spacious back yard, a formal dining room and a master bedroom and an additional room that allows family members to communicate with others from any room in the house.

Snyder, who served in the Marines from 1961 to 1965, battles post-traumatic stress disorder because of myriad ailments, including a disk, two blown knees and diabetes, and the VA will install a stairlift in his new home so he can have access to the upstairs master bedroom. Until then, he plans to scarp the downstairs bedroom.

“His home has a spacious backyard, cooks and other amenities,” said Katie Snyder, 23, holding her infant daughter Peyton outside their new home.

“My mom was so pretty inside,” Snyder said of his new home.

“I’m just as elated as he was,” said his oldest daughter, Carrie “Allie” Snyder, 22, holding her infant daughter Peyton outside their new home.

“She said living in transition was an eye-opening experience,” Snyder said.

“Definitely gave you a whole new perspective and empathy for people living on the streets,” Allie said.

“She went way out of her way,” said Katie Snyder.
